"Wait, boys, wait," replied Frank, as he puffed a volume of blue amoke from his mouth.

"Now, why don't you go to the store determined to do your duty and attended to business as you should I would wildingly raise your alary, even to a thousand dollars, I don't mind the amount but F do want the monny's worth.

"Yes you are. If you did so, how long do you suppose it would take Brown to find it out!"

"Seventy-five years."

"Brown is strewd."

"No he; I have given him abundant opportunities to appreciate me."

"I have no heart to do anything Here lam, in debt for the accessaries of life, and not a five dollar bill la my pocket."

"That is your fault. Your salary is onugh to live on."
